There's a world of opportunities for Wisconsin businesses. In a perfect world, new development projects would enjoy fast turnaround times, quick approvals and low risk. Wisconsin Certified Sites bring both communities and development teams closer to realizing those shared development goals. The Wisconsin Economic Development Corporation (WEDC) works in concert with professional site selectors to ensure consistent standards for industrial site certification in Wisconsin. Certification involves a thorough review process that produces detailed documentation about each site's price, availability, utilities, access, and environmental standing, allowing investors to make informed decisions. As part of the certification process, the community site team also gains experience through a detailed RFP and an in-person site visit.
